connecting cottbus presents its up to date programme providing outstanding innovations at a new festival location

18th edition of coco to feature a new main location at the historic Stadthaus, a focus on Ukraine and the new Midpoint Scholarship Award in addition to the customary roster of pitchings, presentations and events

Cottbus, November 3, 2016 – For its upcoming 18th edition, connecting cottbus, the East-West co-production market at the FilmFestival Cottbus, will introduce a mix of several new features as well as the tried-and-tested pitchings, cocoLab format, panels and networking events that have established coco as one of the main film industry events of its kind. This year’s record number of more than 120 applications from 35 countries for its 10 slots for project pitches testifies to its international attractiveness, as does the record level accredited film professionals who will use the event for the latest news on the state of East-West co-productions and topics such as Video on Demand and Audience Development.

Several features are increasing coco’s appeal this year. coco was able to secure the historic Stadthaus Cottbus as its new main hub, offering improved facilities for events as well as spaces for work and informal networking.

In another innovation, coco will present one pitch project out of competition in cooperation with Midpoint. Ten additional projects will compete for four coco awards:

An expert jury will select the winner of the coco Post Pitch Award, sponsored by the The Post Republic and consisting of post-production services to the value of € 25,000.

All coco participants will select the coco Best Pitch Award, a cash prize of €1,500 sponsored by Berliner Synchron as well as the coco Producers Network Award consisting in an accreditation to the Producers Network at the Marché du Film in Cannes.

Another first this year is the cooperation between cocoLab and Midpoint awarding the new Midpoint Scholarship Award that enables one cocoLab project to participate in the Midpoint Feature Launch. The professional script development program is intended for young and emerging film professionals with first and second feature film projects and professional short films.

For the second year running, coco will host the Polish-German Co-Production Roundtable, joining forces with Medienboard Berlin-Brandenburg, Mitteldeutsche Medienstiftung, the Polish Film Institute and the Film Commission Poland to invite leading producers from Poland and Germany to discuss opportunities for co-production.
At its Focus Ukraine coco will present Ukrainian co-production possibilities, case studies and Ukrainian Works-in-Progress EGREGOR (Solar Media Entertainment), NIRVANA GUEST HOUSE (Pronto Film) & REPUBLIC PILGRIM (Toy Cinema) together with the Odessa International Film Festival and the Ukrainian State Film Agency.
